

FIND TWO DEAD ON RAILROAD

Both Have Relatives Here.--One of
Monday

The local police were notified today of the finding of two bodies on the tracks of the Boston and Maine railroad, one at Portland and the other at Lowell. Papers and letters found in the clothing of each indicated that both had been in this city and have friends and relatives that reside here. Both of the bodies were horribly mangled. The man killed at Portland proved to be Max Spier, aged 39, who left this city on Monday. While here he boarded at the home of Jacob Hooze on Hancock street and worked awhile about the city.

He was identified by a paper and a bottle with a label of Boardman and Norton. Spier, is thought to be from Haverhill, Mass., and relatives in that city have been notified. The man found at Lowell was Roger Morrison, aged 46 years. On his person was a letter from his sister Mrs. George M. Landregan of 156 Fleet street, this city, who the police notified this forenoon. Morrison also has an invalid mother living here. He had recently been in this city to see his mother who has not been informed of her son's death owing to her condition.

Secretary of Navy Reported
Under the Weather at

The report that George Von L. Meyer, secretary of the navy, was seriously ill, was denied over the telephone last night by a member of his family at Hamilton.

From the same source the information was given that the secretary arrived at his home in Hamilton last evening.

HOW ABOUT 100-YARD DASH?
Joseph Helt of Portsmouth, N. H., one of Old Strawberry Bank's large taxpayers, at 64 years of age finds himself still able to turn a back somersault, a feat which the majority of young men find themselves unable to perform. This is by no means the sole athletic evidence of Mr. Helt's superb physical preservation.

Miss Julia Brien of Boston is passing a few days with her sister, Mrs. Edmund Brown of Bridge street.

MEMORIAL WINDOW CONSECRATED AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

In Memory of Rear Admiral
George F. Pearson, U.S.N.

Old St. John's the historic Episcopal church on Church hill famous because of the patronage of royalty and its relationship to the early history of America was on Sunday decorated with another memorial window. This latest adjunct to the historical features of the church is dedicated to the memory of the late Rear Admiral George F. Pearson, U. S. A., who was at one time commandant of the Portsmouth navy yard and a communicant of the famous old church.

The memorial window was presented to the church by Thomas R. Proctor of Union, N. Y., which was the home of the late Admiral Pearson. Mr. Proctor was formerly a pay clerk in the navy when Admiral Pearson was detached from this naval station and ordered to command the Asiatic squadron. Mr. Proctor went with him as his secretary. Mr. and Mrs. Proctor attended the dedicatory exercises Sunday. The navy department was represented at the services by several admirals. In addition to the window, Mr. Proctor presented the church with a $1000 bond in memory of Mrs. Pearson and of Miss Elizabeth Pearson, who during her life in this city established a reputation for unostentatious charity. Admiral Pearson commanded the station in 1860 and the charities of his wife and daughter continued for the succeeding ten years.

The memorial window was designed by Holiday of London, Eng. It consists of four panels, each of which is inscribed with symbols of faith, hope, charity and justice. The bas relief is a representation of the head and shoulders of the late Admiral Pearson. The border is of canthus leaves.

The Rev. Harold M. Folsom, rector of St. John's, conducted the services of consecration.

George A. Jackson, the veteran carpenter, is reported as being quite ill at his home on Dearborn street.

BANK OFFICIAL GOES WRONG

Treasurer Lord Accused of Embezzlement of $40,000 from New Bedford Banks

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 26.—Edgar Lord, treasurer of the New Bedford and Acushnet co-operative banks was arrested tonight on a charge of embezzlement of $40,000 from the banks. The complaint was made by Charles W. Levi, one of the bank examiners of the commonwealth.

Mr. Lord was placed under arrest at the home of Rufus A. Soule, president of the Acushnet co-operative bank, where a conference of several directors with the bank examiner and the treasurer was held. The complaint alleges that the irregularities cover a period since 1907.

Tomorrow the bank examiners will take charge of the banks to make a thorough investigation. Mr. Lord was under $10,000 bonds in a surety company, and there are some offsets. Payments will be temporarily suspended until the examination is completed and the exact situation known.

Mr. Lord has been in the employ of the bank for twenty years and has been a diligent worker. He is well known as a musician, having been organist at the Trinitarian church in this city for ten years, and is now the organist and director at the Calvary Baptist church in Providence. He has a wife and four children.

SALMON FALLS MAN PUTS BULLET THROUGH HEAD

Thought That His Rash Act Was Caused by the Illness of His Brother.

Emil Bois of Salmon Falls committed suicide at his home in that town Sunday night.

Mr. Bois entered his room that evening and, without apparent reason, shot himself through the right temple, death resulting instantly.

Mr. Bois was 26 years of age, and leaves a wife and one child. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Bois of Salmon Falls, and had always lived in that town.

Mr. Bois was a man of good habits, and had never shown any signs of despondency or mental trouble. It is thought that he was upset by the illness of his brother, Napoleon Bois, who was suddenly taken ill while playing in a band concert in his city on Saturday night.

It is understood that Mr. Bois' only was also ill, and it is thought that his act was caused by worry. He visited his brother at the Portsmouth hospital on Sunday.

Medical Examiner, F. J. Reay of Rochester was called and pronounced the case one of suicide.

Mr. Bois was a member of Catholic Order of Foresters, and was a candidate on the Democratic ticket for supervisor of the checklist at the coming primaries.

COST OF LIVING IS NOT SO HIGH

During the panic of 1907 many merchants boosted prices. They figured that not so many people would buy and those who did could afford to pay the longer price.

After the panic a lot of these merchants forgot to reduce their profits. You'll find that in stores which require only a reasonable profit, prices are practically no higher.

Compare our prices with prices elsewhere or with the prices for similar goods five years ago. Then come in and compare quality.

FRIGHTENED BURGLARS Attempt Robbery at Residence of Hugh Gibson.

An attempt was made to ransack the home of Hugh Gibson on Elwyn avenue at 3 o'clock Monday morning. The burglars had cut a screen from the dining room window and were inside when the son of William Gibson woke and ran to the room of his father. The noise overheard frightened the thieves and they made a hurried exit through the window. Nothing was found missing and the break was not reported to the police. Other residents were awakened by the noise of the men and looking out of their windows saw them escaping.

Mr. William C. Keefe of Boston is passing his vacation in this city and vicinity.

Financial Transactions of Archbold and Perkins With Roosevelt Will Be Opened Up

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—At the yesterday, that his committee probably would not reconvene before Sept. 30.

Senator La Follette's direct of a continued filibuster hung over the senate in force consideration, that body yesterday passed the Penrose resolution, calling for a complete investigation of the campaign contributions of John D. Archbold and George W. Perkins, and of all financial transactions and correspondence relating thereto between the two financiers and Theodore Roosevelt, representative in congress and members of the senate of the United States.

The objections to the resolution, die out in the final hours of the session. When the senate met at noon it had been mutually agreed that no opposition would be made to Senator La Follette's request for action. Based on the charges made by Senator Penrose that the Standard Oil company had contributed $100,000 to the Roosevelt fund in 1904, the resolution had been amended by Senators Poindexter and Penrose, to cover all the activities of Mr. Archbold and Mr. Perkins of a political nature.

The resolution, once before the senate, passed with little discussion and with no negative votes. One important witness change which was made gives witness the right to have attorneys at the hearings before the senate committee. Senator Clapp, chairman of the sub-committee, said

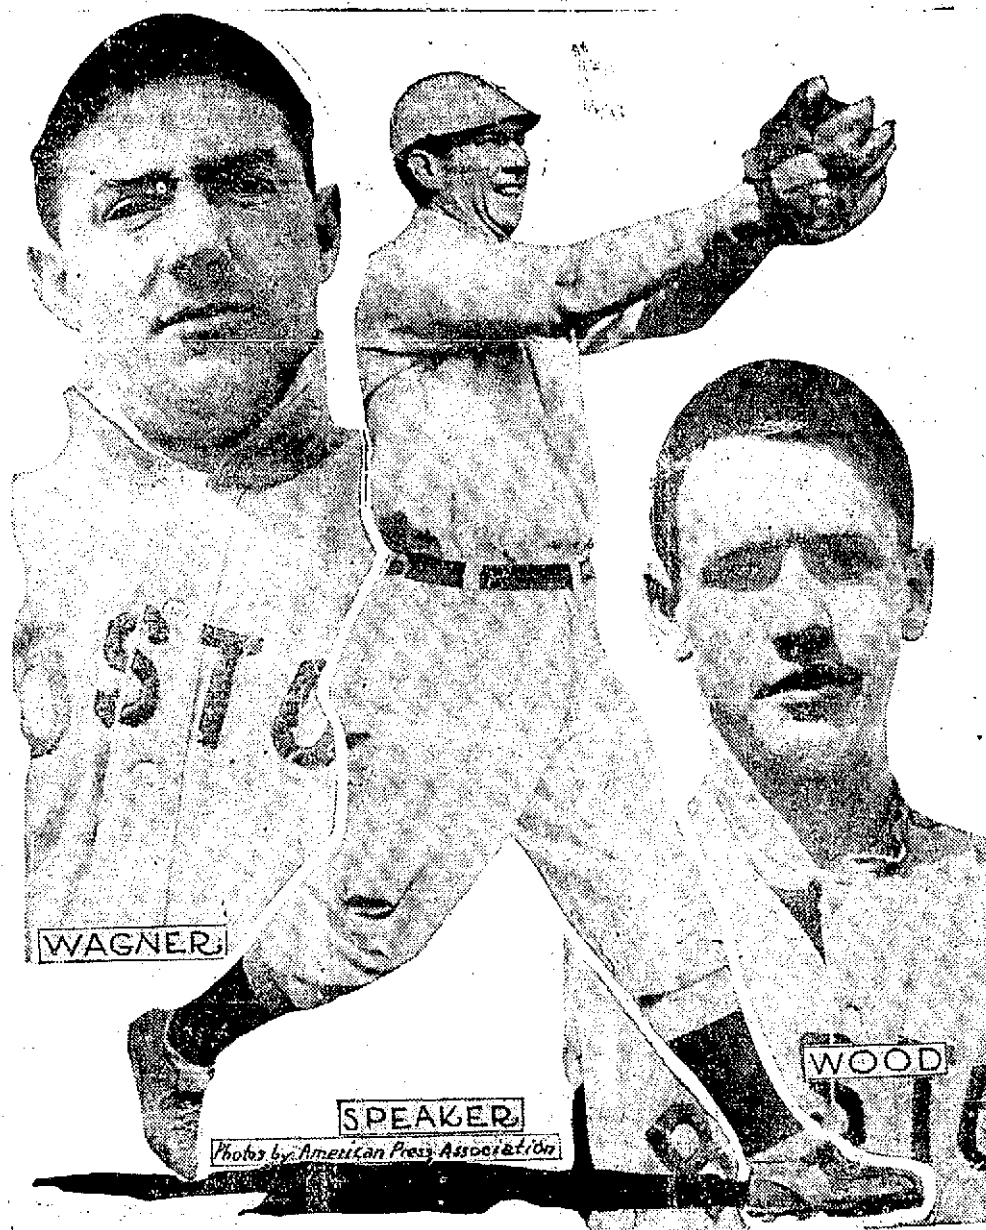

Senator Clapp, yesterday asked Chairman Dillingham of the committee on privileges and elections to appoint another Democrat to take the place of Senator Paynter on the sub-committee. Senator Dillingham had already designated Senator Pomerene of Ohio to take the place of Senator Luke Lea, of Tennessee, who resigned. Senator Paynter has notified Senator Clapp he cannot serve longer.

"There was a general understanding among the members of the committee," Senator Clapp said last night, "that if the Penrose resolution passed we would resume our investigation at the end of September. The passage of the resolution will make no material change in our plans, except to widen somewhat their scope of the inquiry."

Senator La Follette said he intended to make public a complete schedule of his expenses as a candidate for the Republican nomination for President. This statement, he said, would embrace practically all information that he could give on the witness stand before the senate committee but the Wisconsin senator expects to appear before the committee at the fall hearing.

Senator Clapp said it had not been decided at what time Colonel Roosevelt would appear or what other witnesses would testify.

Three Members of Boston Red Sox Whose Wonderful All Round Playing Has Put the Team in the Lead

BOSTON, Aug. 27.—American league experts have about conceded the pennant to the Red Sox. Jake Stahl's speed boys are now going stronger than at any time this season, and the pitching staff is the best in the league and in first class shape. While all the members of the Red Sox have put up a grand brand of ball, still three whose playing stands out above the others. They are Outfielder Tris Speaker, Shortstop Heinie Wagner and Pitcher Joe Wood. The latter has had a wonderful year in the box and leads the American league twirlers in games won. His grand pitching has done much to put the Sox in the lead. Last season Wagner was thought to be all in on account of a bad wing. Right from the start of the 1912 campaign Heinie has played a brilliant game. He is the pivot of the Boston infield. Speaker has been putting up a sensational game in the field, on the bases and at the bat. He is giving Ty Cobb a great run for the hitting honors of the country. Local critics believe Tris is a more valuable player than the redoubtable Cobb.

RAILROAD NOTES

John Warburton, clerk at the local Boston & Maine freight office, has resigned to accept a position with the Portsmouth Milling Company.

Diver Puterson of the Boston & Maine railroad is engaged in making an examination of the piling of the Dover Point bridge.

Larger and newly painted crossing signs are being erected along the York Harbor and Beach branch of the B. & M. railroad.

Fred Allen, telegraph operator at North Berwick station was a visitor here today.

P. J. Flannery, of Chicago, international president of the freight handlers and freight clerks of the country was the guest and speaker at the meeting of the big Boston & Maine Freight Handlers' Union 5572 Tuesday. This organization recently transferred its allegiance from the K. of L. to the A. F. of L. organization.

The quadrennial weighing of the mails carried by the railroads is to commence on August 24, and continue for about 30 days. While the work will be done by men furnished by the postoffice department, the railroad men have been asked to help out as much as possible without interfering with their own duties.

William McKinley Duncan, attorney for the 52 railroads east of Chicago, today presented a lengthy brief to the Arbitration Board that recently heard the testimony of officials of the companies and of their engineers on the demands of the engineers for an increase in pay and changes in conditions of their work. The brief is an exhaustive argument against granting the engineers increased compensation, contending that their wages at present are full, fair and liberal. It says also that a standardization of rules is impracticable.

The Street Carriers' Union in Boston has now organized to such an extent that only a few hundred employees of the elevated are now non-members, and anxiety among some of these has developed as to what will happen to them if they do not join the union. The union will permit its members to work on Boston Elevated cars along with non-union employees and will not make any move against non-unionists who refuse to come into the union. This was the information learned from officials of the carmen's union yesterday. "It's to be open shop," said Recording Secretary Owen Moore. "The others will be asked to join. They won't be urged."

Best Keith of Lynn, brakeman on the first morning passenger train to this city from Boston was wrapped in smiles this morning and the congratulations came thick and fast. An addition to the family caused it all.

This is purely a local event. It took place in Portsmouth. Not in some faraway place. You are asked to investigate it. Asked to believe a citizens word. To confirm a citizens statement. Any article that is endorsed at home is more worthy of confidence. Than one you know nothing about. Endorsed by unknown people. Thomas Entwistle, chief of police, 47 Cabot street, Portsmouth, N. "I think as highly of Doan's Kidney Pills today as I did years ago when I first used them. At that time I was in a bad way as the result of kidney trouble, and though I had repeatedly tried remedies to get relief, my efforts were in vain. When Doan's Kidney Pills came to my attention, I procured a supply at Philbrick's Drug Store and began using them as directed. In a short time I was rid of kidney trouble and felt better in every way. I occasionally have a slight pain in my back, but a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills give me prompt relief."

NEW YORK GUN MEN MAY BE IN BOSTON

A Mighty Force to Investigate the Graft Game.

New York, Aug. 26.—While the gunmen wanted for the assassination of "Gyp the Blood" are being sought by the New York police, a mighty force of detectives has been sent to Boston to investigate a story that the gunmen are hiding in that city.

house in St. Botolph st., Boston, a few days ago.

The two suspects went to the house about three weeks ago and appeared to be plentifully supplied with money. From the time that they rented their room in the house, neither of the pair ventured abroad in daylight.

One of them, who is described as dark, smooth shaven, and of medium height and stocky build, is thought to be "Lefty Louie." The other man is described as dark, sharp-featured and slender, with stooped shoulders. His height is less than that of the average man. His hair is black and curling. This description, the detectives declare, corresponds to that of Harry Horowitz, otherwise known as "Gyp the Blood."

It was not until last Friday that the New York police learned of the two suspects. The information was brought to the New York police by a lodger in the house, whose suspilions had been aroused by the actions of the two men. The informant said he had noticed that the men never ventured on the street until night-fall, and never remained out of the house for more than two hours.

The night before, he said he had detected a peculiar odor, and peering over the transom of the room occupied by the two men, had seen two more slender men lying on the bed puffing away on an opium layout. He remembered then, he added, that "Gyp the Blood" was described as a confirmed opium fiend.

Upon receiving the information a detective visited the lodging house and made guarded inquiries concerning the two suspects, but failed to get a glimpse of either of them. In some manner the pair became suspicious, for that night they took flight without warning, and all trace of them has been temporarily lost. With the appointment of William J.

Flynn chief of the local United States Secret Service, as chief investigator of the aldermanic investigating committee, came the news today that a corps of the ablest detectives in the country will aid Chief Flynn in ferreting out evidence of police blackmail. Some of these Secret Service men have proved their ability in tracking counterfeiters and other criminals. The investigating committee expects to meet tomorrow for further organization.

It will be contended that Rosenthal was offered $10,000 to go to Canada but that when he demanded $25,000 it was decided to make away with him.

OPEN FIELD DAY AT PLAYGROUND

Thursday of this week will be an open field day at the playground. The Harvey Loving cup will be awarded to the school having the greatest number of points for the summer. The sports will begin in the morning and continue through the day. There will be tents provided by the different schools in which the children can check their dinner. They will be provided over by mothers and teachers from the various schools.

All dolls of Portsmouth are invited to spend the day at the playground. Every doll will be taken care of by the ladies in charge, and a blue ribbon will be given for the prettiest, oldest, largest and smallest doll. Dolls of other nationalities are especially desirable. Entries for the contest close Wednesday evening.

The Indian baskets, raffia bags, doll furniture and weaving, and clay work will be on exhibition. Children are requested to bring their work to the grounds not later than Wednesday morning.

One of the chief attractions of the day will be the baby show, for which prizes are offered. Mothers are urged to bring their little ones.

The committee on arrangements will report later as to the time and place for the baby show.

There will be a sale of candy, cake, and ice cream on the grounds. All come and have a good time.

PORTSMOUTH HOSPITAL.

The total collections on Tag Day for the Portsmouth Hospital were $1,013.68 and after the expenses were paid a net balance of $946.14 remains.

The directors take pleasure in acknowledging this with thanks to every one who contributed to it, either in large or small amounts, also to all the chaperons and young people who helped in collecting.

The average monthly expenses at the hospital since our year began in October have been $1105. This includes nurses, service, food medical and surgical supplies, telephone, fuel, electric lights, gas and incidentals of all kinds.

Our funds do not allow us to purchase many new furnishings and these we have need of constantly: mattresses, sheets, blankets, etc. are continually needing to be replenished. We are always glad of any special contributions towards these.

OUR CANDIDATES:

For President,
WILLIAM H. TAFT
Of Ohio.

For Vice President,
JAMES S. SHERMAN,
of New York.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 27, 1912.

The Boston Globe remarks that Gov. Wilson is a writer of books, and Gov. Marshall is a great reader and is said to enjoy especially the odes of Horace. It's a literary ticket.

It is certainly refreshing to learn that the democratic candidate for president is not going to take the stump. It is to be sincerely hoped that Col. Roosevelt will follow the example set by Mr. Wilson.

The St. Louis Republic says England is showing the premonitory symptoms of another panic over German naval activities. Between these two nations have well nigh congested the North sea with their fleets, and yet war seems to be as far off as ever.

The Boston Advertiser quotes Governor Bass as predicting that Roosevelt will carry New Hampshire and every state west of the Mississippi. From the foregoing it is very evident that the boy governor is about as much of a success as a prophet, as he has been the chief executive of the state of New Hampshire.

The New York Sun says in his desperate purpose to attain for himself another term in the White House or failing in that to wreck final vengeance on his old friend, Taft, Mr. Roosevelt is now said to be plotting the overthrow of the electoral system. The thing would be incredible if there was not so much evidence of it coming just now from so many states. If anything not written in law is fixed beyond even that assault of volcanic activity it is the moral obligation that binds the presidential elector to vote in his turn for the regular ticket of the party which chose him to perform that duty. Talk about the original scheme of the electoral college is nonsense at this period of the republic's life. It is scandalous business when a candidate for President on an independent ticket sets about persuading friends of his that the requirements of personal honor and of invariable custom may be set aside for his benefit. No presidential elector has ever been so base as that.

TO THE REPUBLICANS OF NEW HAMPSHIRE.

I have been looking over the report of the meeting of the Republican State Committee held at Concord on Thursday the 23d and note with regret that some members felt it their duty to resign from the Committee. This is regrettable from the fact that a divided Republican party is liable to give the State to the Democrats, including the United States Senatorship but if the gentlemen who resigned cannot consistently support President Taft, they did the only thing they could do in honor. It is idle for any one to say that the nominee for the Presidency can be repudiated without severing connection with the party. It is a surprise to me that Secretary Musgrove did not deem it his duty to resign a position the duties of which are intimately connected with the campaign, and I am sure that he will do so before the activities of the campaign commence. It would be a strange anomaly for a man to retain the secretaryship of a political organization while at the same time he was repudiating and trying to defeat the head of the ticket.

I note with regret that Mr. Musgrove felt it incumbent on him to resign the foolish story that the last campaign I refused to take part because the so-called Progressives had carried the State in the primaries. For more than thirty years it has been my privilege to actively participate in the campaign in New Hampshire, and no one except Mr. Churchill, Mr. Musgrove, and Mr. Manning so far as I know, have charged that I sulked in the last campaign, an excuse to render assistance. Let me state the facts. At the opening of the campaign I was informed by a man closely connected with the State Committee that I would not be called upon to take any part, it being plainly intimated that I would more likely do harm than good to the cause. Previous to that time Mr. Churchill had declared in a public meeting at Nashua that if a rope was put around my neck and I was thrown in the sea it would be a benefit to the party. Under those circumstances I contented myself with advising republicans who consulted me to vote the entire ticket, notwithstanding Mr. Bass had emphatically alluded to the Old Guard as being unworthy of confidence toward the close of the campaign.

was waited upon by the Chairman of the Committee and asked to speak an evening with Mr. Bass, the conditions being that I should confine myself to a discussion of the subject of the American Merchant Marine. I declined to accept an appointment under those conditions. I might as well have been asked to discuss any other subject that was forgotten to politics as to address a political gathering on the subject that was assigned to me. I naturally felt that if the men who were conducting the campaign felt that they did not need my assistance, and were not disposed to ask it without offensive conditions, that I could well afford to take a vacation for one year. It is quite probable that the same statement that Dr. Musgrove made will be repeated in the future, but whether it is or not I feel it incumbent at this juncture to put the matter fairly before the Republicans of the State. It has been my privilege since the days of Abraham Lincoln to vote the Republican ticket, and I am intending to do so until the close of my life. I was not diverted from my allegiance to the party by the Greely movement nor will I be diverted from it by the Roosevelt movement, and it is certainly a fact that if I had followed freely in 1880, or if I intended to follow Roosevelt in 1912, I would not have been a Republican in good and regular standing.

Very respectfully yours,
J. H. GALLINGER.

John D. Archbold, president of the Standard Oil company, was born in Leesburg, O., in 1818. At the age of sixteen he went to the Pennsylvania oil regions and ten years later became associated with Standard Oil. Since that time he has been one of the big men of the giant corporation. When he succeeded John D. Rockefeller as president of the company about a year ago Mr. Rockefeller referred to him as "the brains of the institution." Mr. Archbold recently testified before the senate committee investigating campaign contributions and made the sensational statement that in his opinion the administration's attack upon the big corporation in 1905 was inspired by the failure of the Standard Oil to give an additional $150,000 to the campaign fund of 1904 after having already given $10,000.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—The gambling house on Parry-second street where the Rosenthal murder was believed to have been planned, was raided tonight by Police Inspector Dwyer, successor to Inspector Cornelius J. Hayes, recently reduced to the rank of captain by Commissioner Waldo. Although Webster, confessed accomplice in the murder, is in jail, the place has been running for some weeks as an incorporated "poker club" by some of "Bridgie's" friends, it is said.

After two of Dwyer's men had entered the place a day or two ago and found a poker game in progress, warrants were secured, and tonight the inspector went over the heads of the police, captain of precinct and led the raid himself. A man who described himself as Kirk Brown, a clerk was arrested, and many decks of cards, poker chips and card tables were confiscated.

Police Commissioner Waldo promised tonight to make public tomorrow a list of the names of the owners and agents of buildings rented for gambling purposes or houses of ill repute, which he has had prepared for the use of the district attorney in the John Doe proceedings before Justice Goff to expose police corruption. This list, according to information obtained at police headquarters tonight, contains the names of men high in social and financial circles of the city.

That the district attorney would use the list for purposes of prosecution after the ownership of the illegal used property had been established by testimony before Justice Goff, was made known today by a representative of the district attorney.

This proposed prosecution of owners of illegal places is said to have been suggested by Justice Goff as one of the most effective weapons that could

THE STATESMAN WHO STANDS BY THE LAW

I am for Taft—big, on-the-square Taft! Believer in doctrines of old! You may say he is slow, but this much I know, None safer the Big Chair will hold.

I am for Taft, the American Taft. The statesman who stands by the law The man who is set dead against the recall, And knows how to fight men who graft.

I'm an American, born in the land Made free by the patriots' blood, And with Taft by the old Constitution I'll stand, As a real American should!

I'm one of a patriot band of old That gave us our liberty, And opposed to new doctrines getting a hold In this Land of the Brave and the Free.

I'm an Irish-American, born on the soil Where the American martyrs shed blood, And my forefather died on Vinegar Hill In the way that an Irishman should.

I'm an Irish-American, pleased with the way The Man in the Chair does his duty today; And I am for Taft, the American Taft, The statesman who stands by the law.

HISTORIC OLD MANSION DESTROYED BY FIRE

Ursula Cutts' House on Wentworth Farm a Complete Loss--Property Owned by the American Agriculture and Chemical Company.

The historic Ursula Cutts house on the Wentworth farm, the second oldest house in this city, was destroyed by fire shortly after two o'clock on Monday afternoon.

The Wentworth farm is now owned by the American Agriculture and Chemical Company and is used as an experiment farm. The house was occupied by Head farmer H. Hays Kildridge and family.

Shortly before two o'clock the house was discovered on fire and a telephone message was sent to Chief Randall and he ordered the auto chemical out, going along himself. They made good time and when they arrived the house was beyond saving much as there was no water and the two tanks of the chemical would not have checked the flames, but they did save the barns.

The fire had started in an upper room, and had spread through the entire upper part of the house. The furniture with the exception of the room where the fire started, was saved. The auto chemical having arrived so that the firemen did the greater part of this.

The sparks from the burning building several times set fire to the stables, but the Chemical put them out and saved the building.

Had a fire engine been sent out, it would not have been any use as there was no water even if it had arrived in good season.

The loss is about $3500 with insurance on the house, but none on the furniture.

The fire eliminates one of the historic houses of this city. The house was built in 1681 by Madame Ursula Cutts, widow of President John Cutts of the New Hampshire Colony, who willed her the farm. It was substantially built and it was in a fine state of preservation.

In the Indian massacre of July 17, 1694, Madame Cutts was killed and scalped by the Indians who came across from the Elliot shore, but the alarm was given and they left without burning the buildings.

The farm was occupied afterwards by Hon. Ichabod Bartlett and it was in the family of the late Mark H. Wentworth for a great many years, until it was sold to the American Agriculture and Chemical Company.

Over the door of the old mansion were two wooden benches, which it is supposed were placed there by Madam Cutts, but they were removed when the house was sold.

to take the dumb animals' side and fight it until their emancipation from tyrannical, oppressive and cruel housing, harnessing and slaughter conditions is achieved by a National law. "The more I study this humane problem the more plainly I see that animals are unjustly oppressed by a part of the population—namely, their owners and users—while the great body of the population who object to it, have no voice in the matter at all. "The matter of justice to captive dumb creatures is a beginning proposition where it should be a compulsory one. "There are men, women and children enough; brains push and money enough, in the United States to emancipate captive dumb creatures forever from the slavery of oppressive housing, harnessing and slaughter conditions. The people should rise up and liberate them, as they did the slave. "I believe in going to ever possible limit before employing force, but when people persist in error in spite of long suffering remonstrance they mustn't think it strange or unjust if lightning strikes them and force is used to bring them to a reckoning; with justice, especially when the force used will cause them in spite of themselves, to dwell in the land and prosper. "That is the way I look at it, and that is the way it worked out in emancipating the slave. The greatest curse of humane endeavor is the cowardice of the people in refusing to act; it means perpetual bondage to dumb animals unless the constitution forbids it. "A lot of people won't do the right thing until they are compelled to do it. "The cities are full of business concerns that own 10 to 200 horses which are compelled to wear purely for fashion's sake, the closest fitting blinders made; a yoke of oxen could-not drag these blinders off the animals. The owners won't allow it and there is no law to force them to. "Hundreds of thousands of reputable business men owning horses, surrender them to animal slave drivers at night, to be thrust into 4 foot-ammunition-reeking stalls called horse-stalls, without a particle of light, water, or ventilation; their heads strapped up so they can't get them within two feet of the floor if they want to sleep, and even the privilege denied them in their narrow stalls to stretch out their tired legs. "A few people dictate to the whole country how animals shall be treated. It is wrong and can be reversed. Let the people act. "I will say that my investigations among country stables shows that native farmers as a rule are alive to the importance of providing the best possible quarters for their beasts, and many of them are remodeling their animal quarters. "As a while the country stabling conditions offer the least criticism. "It is in the congested districts and among foreigners who now comprise over one half the population, and own or handle hundreds of millions of animals and fowl that reforms are needed. The whole Grange movement should co-operate with the Humane Societies to bring about these reforms in the interest of general animal conservation. "There is a lot to be done for captive dumb animals. I am simply taking their side and fighting it. There are a few to argue their case while thousands of lawyers are hired to defend their tyrannical owners. "I believe that the people have neglected this great matter long enough and should now rise up and emancipate animals as they did the slave. "The 681 Human Societies in this country should focus on a Constitutional Amendment perfectly guaranteeing certain inalienable rights for dumb creatures in captivity, such as light, air, room, water, bedding cleanliness, a free neck and warm things they would provide for themselves if they lived in a free state. "What is theirs by right should be theirs by law; animals have to submit to the arbitrary ruling of biased and tyrannical owners. The humane sentiment of the country has been dominated long enough by animal owners and handlers whose chief interest in their captive dumb creatures is the money or pleasure they can wring out of their carcasses dead or alive.

Secretary C. H. Packard, Mass. S. P. C. A.

I am simply taking their side and fighting it. There are a few to argue their case while thousands of lawyers are hired to defend their tyrannical owners. "I believe that the people have neglected this great matter long enough and should now rise up and emancipate animals as they did the slave. "The 681 Human Societies in this country should focus on a Constitutional Amendment perfectly guaranteeing certain inalienable rights for dumb creatures in captivity, such as light, air, room, water, bedding cleanliness, a free neck and warm things they would provide for themselves if they lived in a free state. "What is theirs by right should be theirs by law; animals have to submit to the arbitrary ruling of biased and tyrannical owners. The humane sentiment of the country has been dominated long enough by animal owners and handlers whose chief interest in their captive dumb creatures is the money or pleasure they can wring out of their carcasses dead or alive.

"The people have the power to stop it. It is merely a matter of enough voters and influence. "The people can take the blinders off every horse-bridle in the whole country and keep them off. "They can abolish check-reins or regulate their use. They can require every horse-owner to use horse half-back pads and collar pads. "They can compel every horse owner to provide a ten-foot stall, a 4 by 6 window, a perpetually filled water-basin and give the beasts a free neck. They can compel owners of all captive dumb creatures to provide tight winter quarters and bedding, take hogs out of the fifth and give them a tight shack, and a quarter acre run in the open. They can liberate cows from stiff stanchions and give them a six foot berth, a free neck, and a perpetually filled water-basin. These are the animals rights and should be guaranteed them under the Constitution. "That is the great need as I see it, in the handling of this animal industry problem. The animals now get what their owners see fit to give it in good or bad treatment; they are the butt of a thousand different whims and theories besides being the victims of old-fashioned housing quarters that will keep them in perpetual bondage unless they are thus emancipated. "Anyone can see that such a state of things works out badly for captive dumb creatures. No one realizes the force of this more than a humane agent whose duty it is to visit these creatures in their homes and environment day and night, both city and country. "The right national law relating to animal protection in regard to housing, harness and slaughter would settle this humane problem for all time and save a lot of expense to the humane societies who could then prosecute humane educational work effectively with their husbanded resources. Every animal's life would be prolonged and their efficiency promoted by conforming to the improved housing, harnessing and care-taking regulations that I suggest. "Every humane person will admit that it would work out well in the end, and to the advantage and profit of every animal owner without any question (furthermore it would prevent among human being much disease, suffering and death through improved hygienic conditions. The animal's homes are the breeding places of house flies and you may never get rid of the pest until you go back to the animal and treat it right. Observance of the moral law is a good business proposition and good health proposition as well. "In order to work no hardship to owners who are unfortunately equipped as a whole, it put to it, would suggest that the government, that is, all of the people, stand the expense of remodeling all present animal quarters to conform to these humane hygienic requirements, and that all new animal quarters built be made to conform to them. I believe that the people as a whole, it put to it, would be willing to do this great act of justice and mercy toward dumb creatures thus guaranteeing them perpetual immunity from hard living conditions. "If men in any line of animal industry are not willing to stop oppressing animals, they should be made to do it, precisely as the people in times past, have risen up to take matters into their own hands in order to destroy the power of tyrants and emancipate the oppressed. Self-interest has always been the greatest barrier to human progress. It may be necessary for the people to ride rough shod

over animal tyrants who won't stop animal suffering because it costs them something or because it interferes with their notions as to what constitutes animal's rights. There is a big class of men who will not consent to the adoption of appliances proved by general use to increase a dumb creature's comfort and ease. "Its suffering. It goes against their grain to do it. Their pet argument is that they don't believe in taking animals into the parlor. "In addition to a big class of owners who won't see the animal's rights because the almighty dollar is before their eyes obscuring the whole horizon, there is a large ignorant class of handlers, many of them as morally low in the scale of life as any creature they handle, who won't learn, nor see the light, and a plie driver couldn't beat humaneness into them. They don't know what the term means; they are brutal in their nature and the animal is up against all this. These men are on the job of tyrannizing over the dumb creatures in an arbitrary way and they have the whole say. The dumb animals are at their mercy. "All that the humane societies, police and other protectors of dumb animals can do under existing conditions is to plead with these Simon Legree's to be a little more merciful to their beasts. Generally it goes in one ear and out of the other. That is my experience. There is nothing compulsory about it. It's all optional with the owner or driver how a dumb creature shall be housed or harnessed. It is wrong. "I go all over the State asking men won't they please let up a little on that nagging check rein. I ask them won't they push back those blinders hogged down over the horse's eyes. I ask them won't they exchange the heavy old junk on the beast's backs for lighter weight, modern, humane and hygienic back pads and collar. I ask them won't they put a bucket of water in the stalls over night to quench the animals' thirst. Won't they ease up on the halter rope that straps up the animal's head. Won't they please disinfest and place bedding in the filthy ammonia reeking stalls, and won't they make a hole through the building in front of the animal's head so it can get a little fresh air and see something of life? Won't they plan to widen out the stuffy, narrow stalls a bit and give the animal a chance to stretch out his weary legs in the attempt to get a decent night's sleep? Won't they do something to keep the torturing flies off horses and cattle? Won't they do away with the old straight stanchion for cows, give them a free neck, a little more room some bedding and a basin of water over night; within reach? Won't they take the hogs out of the rotten fifth and excrement they wallow in and feed upon and treat them in a civilized, humane way by giving them a tight little shack with run in the pen? Won't they protect their dumb creatures from the biting cold? It amounts to nothing, they hold the whip hand. There is no law back of your work that they fear and you may fire bundles of humane literature at the average animal user and move whole armies of humane workers on them, without results till you get a national law protecting the animals that will force them to line up. A drastic national law should guarantee dumb creatures certain rights such as outlined and that is the thing everybody interested in our dumb animals should focus upon. To a pretty large extent the present kind of effort put forth is fruitless. I have found it so. If I had a law back of me in my daily field work, indicating the kind and character of housing and harnessing for captive dumb creatures could bring animal owners to terms without parley. You can't do it as matters are now and every humane worker knows it. "The universal demand of humane societies is a law protecting dumb creatures, so strict that men will be afraid to violate it. "My experience is that most owners and handlers are incorrigible. I find many sore-backs on horses and claim a lot of this is due to old back pads, ancient old collars and uncleanness. The only back pad or collar pad that should be put on a horse is a cool open fibre horse-hair pad. The law should compel owners to use them. The number of blind horses is rapidly increasing and is due to close fitting blinders and ammonia reeking unventilated horse-stalls, more than anything else. I have taken statistics all over the State showing the relation between blind horses and unventilated stalls with close fitting blinders. Also books of testimony from horse owners in city and country admitting that they don't use blinders and that any horse can be broken from their use. "This testimony from thousands of experienced horse-owners and handlers against the use of blinders is in controvertible. The dispute about blinders simmers down to a contest between a lot of animal tyrants and the humane portion of the community. "Blinders constitute an outrage; their use is an act of barbarism, besides being a menace to the efficiency and health of the animal. "A drastic National law should prohibit their use and also should regulate the check-rein pad and stipulate how it should be used if at all. The check-rein tyrant seldom studies out his animal's comfort. The law should step in and study it out for him. "Water in stalls"—A captive dumb creature gets water when its keeper sees fit to give it and no oftener. The keeper may be tired, forgetful, ugly, indifferent, asleep, sick or drunk. It is an outrage to deprive animals of water. They eat a dry ration which exhausts the gastric juices of their bodies in the act of digestion. An intense thirst sets up to restore these fluids and to distribute the digested feeds through the system, and they are usually compelled to suffer with thirst from eight to twelve hours. "A drastic National law should require every owner of a captive dumb creature to provide a perpetually filled water basin for it under penalty of a jail sentence. "Animals are systematically robbed of a free neck; robbed of the amount of room necessary for them to rest in comfort; robbed of light and, robbed of sight and freedom with blinders and tight check-reins. "The situation has its exact parallel in the servitude of the slaves. Just as drastic action is necessary to liberate animals and I urge the entire humane movement of the country to focus on one objective point, namely a Constitutional Amendment and put the $3,000,000 fund of Mercy Children and Boy Scout movement to work fighting for it. "I hope that the National Humane Convention meeting at Indianapolis in October will consider these suggestions. It is the consummation of the last act in the great humane drama inaugurated by Henry Bergh and George Angell.

NO MAIL TO BE HANDLED SUNDAYS

The following letter received by Postmaster Conner is self explanatory.

Sir:

The postoffice appropriation act for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, provides:

"That hereafter postoffices of the first and second classes shall not be open on Sundays for the purpose of delivering mail to the general public but this provision shall not prevent the prompt delivery of special delivery mail."

Under this law you will close the general delivery, carriers' windows and lock boxes and discontinue all deliveries by carriers on Sunday. You will note, however, that special delivery mail is excepted and you will therefore arrange to have on duty a sufficient force to handle this mail matter promptly.

The Department desires to reduce Sunday work to the minimum so that as many of the employees as possible may enjoy a complete day of rest on Sunday. You should, therefore, require only a sufficient number of clerks to report for duty on that day in order that transit mail and the mail collected for dispatch may be handled without delay. If no mail is dispatched on Sunday a very early collection should be made on Monday morning and the mail for local delivery distributed before the carriers leave for their first trip.

Respectfully,
C. R. Grandfield
First Asst. Postmaster Gen.

THE PASSING OF "IKE PARTINGTON"

The death of Joseph Turner removes a personality from the West-end of Portsmouth that has been quite marked for nearly four scores. The name of "Joe Turner" has been associated with many social functions to which the voice of his violin has given inspiration, while he has prompted for the dance. This has kept him in the limelight and he has thus been generally known. But "Joe" as all his friends knew him was an amiable, intelligent, unassuming, retiring man, not much in dress and style but very companionable.

You would find him sometimes at home among his zoological collections perhaps stuffing a bird or animal that he has shot, or you were more likely to find him at some neighboring store, making himself agreeable to everybody and perchance telling stories of the old times, or of his experiences in the course of his excursions into the country. "Joe" was a sport, in the true sense of the word, and killed a lot for the mere killing but for a definite purpose. Through a favorite when the dance was on, he was not a ladies' man and it would seem almost absurdly to think of his ever marrying. And he didn't; but lived in his bachelor's life.

His father, Joseph Turner, was the junior publisher of the Dover Gazette at the time of his marriage in Dec. 1829. His mother was Rebecca Shillaber, a sister of Robert and Benjamin P. Joseph lived from an early life with his grandmother until she died, and then lived on alone in the old house at the foot of Langdon street. This old house used to be on the shore of the North Mill Pond but when the railroad was built the space between the road and the little cottage was filled in and now the shore is cut beyond the railroad and far beyond its original bounds.

It was in this little cottage that the renowned Benjamin P. Shillaber was born, and we are very apt to take his characters of "Mrs. Partington" and "Ike" from what we know of those who have lived there. We have naturally looked upon Mrs. Shillaber as "Mrs. Partington" and upon Joe as "Ike Partington" the character seeming to have been suggested to Benjamin by those he was familiar with in the old homestead. He always went there to see his mother when he came to Portsmouth, and the character of Joe met well his notion of "Ike". So we who have known them all for a long time have thought of those people when we have seen the characters of "Mrs. Partington" and "Ike" brought forward by Benjamin P.

And now at the passing on of our good friend Joseph Turner we can not but feel that at last the famous "Ike Partington" is no more.

VOTING AT THE PRIMARIES.

When the direct primary election law of this state was framed great care was taken to guard against an unsteady vote, that is legal voters who might wish to participate in the primary of one party at one election, and in that of the other at the next election. For that reason it was provided that a voter once registered and accepted with one party, must confine his voting in the primaries to that party until at least three months before a primary, he has appeared before the supervisors and had them change his registration. The plain sentiment of the law is that once with a party, a voter remains with the primary as far as participating in the primary election, until he voluntarily transfers to another.

The situation was radically different

Under the caucus law which was in effect in the cities and towns of certain size and in such others as expressed the option of adopting it, that act specifically declared "no person shall vote in any caucus unless he intends to support the ticket of the party holding the caucus at the next ensuing election. And it was provided that when the right of any person offering to vote was challenged, he should make oath that he intended to vote such ticket."

Paragraph (3) of Sect. 10 of the direct primary law, makes plain the privileges of the voter. It reads:

"Any person offering to vote at a primary shall at the time of announcing his name also announce the name of the party to which he belongs. If his name is found upon the checklist, and if his party membership has not been before registered, he shall be allowed to vote the ballot of his party provided, however, if he is challenged, he shall not be allowed to register as a member of such party, or to vote the ballot of said party unless he makes oath or affirmation that he affirms and generally supports the candidates of the party with which he offers to vote. If his party membership has been before registered, he shall be allowed to vote only the ballot of the party with which he is registered."

It would appear from the above that the only time a legal voter's right to vote a ticket is when he first registers his party affiliations. Once registered, and thus admitted to participation in making the party choice, the law gives him the right to continue in such participation without let or hindrance at each of the succeeding primaries that he appears.

The officers of the primaries are the sworn election officials of the town or ward, and they have no option; they must follow the directions of the law, to neglect or refuse to do which subjects them to heavy penalties.

As a matter of law, it seems clear that the supporters of Roosevelt in his third term ambition have as much right to vote at the Republican primaries next week, if already registered as Republicans, as any other so registered, if they care to exercise it, and no moderator has the power to deny them. To such as do not intend to support the nominees of the primary for which places they appear for the purpose of voting, such action cannot be sustained by the rule of good morals. The basic idea of the primary is to permit the voters who are to support the party, candidate for any office to express his preference as to who the candidate should be, and abide by the expressed will of the greatest number.

As a matter of fact, the provision of the law conform to good politics. As far as has appeared, the greater number of those who supported Mr. Roosevelt at the pre-convention primaries, are disposed to support the Republican ticket that is to be fully determined by the Republicans of this state. Logically, why should not all those who intend to vote for the Republican nominee for counselor, senator, county officers and so on have a vote in determining who should be given such nominations?

THE MARSHALL HOUSE NOT SOLD

The rumor of the sale of the Marshall house at York Harbor, to a well known Boston hotel company is denied by Hon. Edward S. Marshall the proprietor of the hotel.

Mr. Marshall said last week to a Chronicle representative that there was no truth what ever in the rumor. He had not sold the hotel and as far as he knew nobody had offered to buy it.

This is Mr. Marshall's 40th year with this famous hotel, having opened it for business in July 1872, and he has every year since looked after the interest of his patrons. Some of the people now at the hotel have been coming there for over thirty years, and there was one guest who has been there every year since the opening. The hotel is one of the finest on the coast and has one of the finest locations in this exclusive resort.

OBITUARY.

Arthur Howe Rand.

Our fellow citizen, Mr. John S. Rand received on Monday noon a telegram announcing the sudden death in New York on Sunday night, from heart trouble, of his only son, Arthur Howe Rand. Mr. Rand had that forenoon received a long and cheerful letter from Arthur, and was entirely unprepared for the sad news of his death. Arthur's family, and he often with them, have been summering at Concordville, York Beach. One week ago he returned to New York, the picture of health and happiness, leaving his family here.

Arthur was born in this city, June 16, 1868; was educated at the Portsmouth schools, and at a business college in Boston. He then entered into business with the large import and export house of H. W. Peabody & Co., New York, remaining there ever since. For several years he was at Manila, Philippine Islands, acting as the agent of his company. This year he has been in South America engaged in the commercial interests of his firm, and returned home on the last day of June, having travelled largely in that continent. He had entered upon a very successful and promising career, and being an only child the hopes of his father were centered upon him. Mr. Rand, the father, had lost a beloved wife six years ago, and now, but for those whom his son has left, would be quite alone in the world. The sympathy of the people of Portsmouth and vicinity where he has been long well and known, will go out for him in his great affliction. The remains of Arthur will be brought to Portsmouth on Wednesday.

He leaves a wife, two sons and a daughter.

FINE BILL AT PORTSMOUTH THEATRE.

The Portsmouth Theatre saw capacity audience last night and every act on the bill pleased. Herbert and the Langreeds sister headed the bill. One is plump and the other is well, slim and besides being slim, is full of the "old Harry" and wears a hobbie skirt that is so hobbled that it would get one feet tangled just to look at it. She is funny and on last night kept the house in a roar from beginning to the end. Her makeup is ridiculous; to say the least, but doubtless every one of the feminine fraternity for miles around will be there to see her. Say or Varro and Sack, the acrobatic Chinamen and their clever dog Sack, presented an artistic and amusing act, and received a good share of applause. Deal & Gaffney who have been featuring songs and novelties act for the past week or so presented their original act last night and they were well received. Motion pictures of extraordinary merit close the show.

The Herald Hears

That while the force of clerks at the post office are pleased with the Sunday orders, the new ruling comes as a disappointment to many.

That not a few people believe that the Sunday work in this branch of the government should have been held up long ago.

That the Central Fire station on Court street is certainly a cramped quarters.

That some alterations are badly needed there and should have come years ago.

That the new apparatus on the playground is furnishing great amusement for Young America.

That the first campaign flag or banner bearing the names of the presidential candidates of either party is yet to be flung to the breezes here.

That campaign money is not going for flags, fireworks and torchlight parades as in past years.

That another fine flat is being erected on Hanover street.

That a choice variety of scandal is still floating on the wings of gossip.

That Rochester wanted a public hospital and several of the leading physicians are interesting themselves in the movement.

That some dredging will sooner or later have to be done at the South End docks in the vicinity of the Yacht Club.

That a lot of young ladies of this city have not wasted their time at the beach this season.

That many of them have learned the art of swimming and can do some handsome diving.

That the death of Joseph Turner removes the oldest musician in this city.

That he was widely known all over the state in his younger days as an orchestra leader and a most excellent promoter.

That the Grand Army Veterans are off for the annual encampment at the Weirs today.

That forty bands will play the dead
 march at the funeral of General Booth, of the Salvation Army.

NOTICE

The Elks' Moonlight Excursion to the Shoals will be held

The program for Monday and Tuesday includes the following:

Father's Weekly gives you the most interesting happenings of the world at a glance.

"The Inner Circle" is an exceptionally strong feature production by the Bi-graph company. A reflex of an ominous condition in this and other countries founded upon fact.

"The Frenzy of Firewater," Kaleem. An Indian drama of great strength.

"The Bogus Napoleon," Vitagraph. A historic comedy. Napoleon catches a couple of rascally courtiers and vagabonds in their own trap.

"The Cactus County Lawyer," This is a little western story of unusual interest.

"The Cross Roads," Vitagraph. A rural drama full of heart interest.

Miss Eva Young sings On San Francisco Bay," and "Kilgarney, My Home O'er the Sea."

 evening 6.20; dancing as usual.

WILL STOP AT NOON THURSDAY

Mark of Respect to the Late General Booth of the Salvation Army.

At the stroke of noon on Thursday next the wheels of all industries of the Salvation Army in America will be stopped in memory of General Booth, whose funeral takes place at a corresponding hour in London.

For four hours while the impressive services are being held and the cortege is passing through the streets of London, every member of the Salvation Army in this country will drop his task and engage in prayer. Orders to that effect were sent out from the army headquarters in New York.

PAINTERS' ATTENTION.

Meeting at U. V. H. hall, Wednesday, Aug. 28, at 8 o'clock. All painters are invited to attend.
